Who we are?

Article by Editorial Board

2020 probably could be heralded as the year of the challenger. The success in a war depends on the strategy. Strategy is to anticipate, observe, learn, plan, perform and improve. COVID the challenger was met head-on by KIMS College of Nursing. Although inexperienced, the grit and determination taught us to rise and meet the challenge. Community outreach programmes and welfare activities and services embedded in our college. As such heeding to the call Of Kerala Chief Minister, the hostel facility was opened as a quarantine centre. We did innovate and we embraced the virtual communication to continue with teaching and interacting with students and authorities. The motivated faculties became the change leaders by embracing change and building content for virtual classrooms. The faculty even conducted on-line exams. We build our administrative team to ensure that the present and future would have what is needed to seek admission and get the latest of what we do in college and communicate with college. We expanded our interplay with digital communication by maximizing the use of virtual platforms. Did we stop investing? No, the Alumni's have also taken a keen interest in investing for the education of the underprivileged students. We are investing in the future so that when we meet the future we are ahead of others at that time. Is it easy, is it cheap? Nothing is easy and cheap. Making the right moves, doing the right things, investing judiciously could tilt the balance in favour of the challenged. Who we are? We are KIMS College of Nursing -leader for future Nurses.

Obituary

We are very sorry to hear the demise of Prof. A Joseph on 19th April 2021. He was the smartest and wisest teacher we met right from the inception of KIMS College of Nursing. We have lost a truly great man and we hold onto the warm and wonderful memories. It was such a bliss. On behalf of KIMS College of Nursing we pay tribute to this great soul with whom we got chance to live with and always try to follow the footprints laid down by him.

Abstract

The present study was conducted to assess the Post COVID symptoms among employees in a tertiary care centre, Thiruvananthapuram. The objectives of the study were to assess the Post COVID symptoms among employees and to find the association of Post COVID symptoms with selected socio personal and clinical variables. Non-experimental retrospective study design was used for the study. 130 employees who tested positive for COVID-19 by RTPCR or antigen assay in KIMSHEALTH, Thiruvananthapuram and who satisfied the inclusion criteria during the period from July 2020 to 31st December 2020 were participated in the study by purposive sampling technique. Self reported questionnaire to assess sociopersonal variables and clinical variables and Post COVID Symptom Assessment Checklist consisting of 27 questions to assess the Post COVID symptoms among employees were administered via Google forms. The study findings showed that among the study participants in systemic symptoms, 23.8% had fever, 59.2% had fatigue and 40% had sleep disturbance during the first month of infection. In respiratory system, 24.6% had difficulty in breathing, 31.5% had dyspnea on exertion and 23.8% had nasal congestion /runny nose, 30.8% had sore throat /throat pain, 25.4% had cough. In cardio vascular system 8.5% had chest pain and 19.2% had palpitation. Regarding gastrointestinal symptoms, 13.8% had nausea, 6.2% had vomiting, 16.2% had heart burn/gastritis and 10.8% had diarrhea and in central nervous system symptoms, 46.9% had headache, 9.2% had mental confusion 18.5% had anxiety/distress. Considering the musculoskeletal symptoms 46.2% had body ache, 42.3% had joint pain and 31.5% had muscle weakness. In sensory symptoms majority (44.6%) had loss of taste, 46.9% had loss of smell and 6.9% had blurred vision. Regarding genitourinary symptoms, 4% had decreased urine output, 9.2% had excessive discharge from genitalia. In Integumentary symptoms 4.65% had skin rashes during 3-6 months and 3.1% had other symptoms during the first month. There was statistically significant association between post COVID symptoms with selected socio personal variables and clinical variables
